I      INTRODUCTION

A.      BACKGROUND

This project is a result of the United Church's growing need for more systematic record keeping methods.

In August, 1984, the 30th General Council of The United Church of Canada, meeting in Morden, Manitoba agreed to the development and implementation of a records management system for the national offices which would extend to the twelve - now thirteen - Conference offices.

A Task Force on Archives and Records Management was formed. It recommended the establishment of a records management program. A Steering Committee was implemented to achieve this goal working with a Records Management Assistant hired for a one year term.

Letter to Conference Secretaries

January 30, 1989

I am happy to attach the File Classification Plan which is the result of the Records Management Program requested by some conferences, which most of you were able to support financially. You have an investment in it and when it is implemented your potential paybacks can be substantial in increased office efficiency alone. The document speaks for itself and you will want to read carefully through the instructions on how the File Classification Plan works (first 10 pages).

Knowing the United Church, my suspicion is that some will have the initial reaction that your present system suits your needs perfectly or that somehow you know better than the professionals. I want to urge that you think the whole matter through carefully. The system is flexible. Even when conferences have files that are peculiar to their own operation these can be fitted into this system with little difficulty.

The ideal, of course, would be that every Conference has a parallel system that meets professional standards and enables the implementation of a consistent records retention/disposition program. Such a program schedules the length of time records need to be kept in the office, in inactive storage and indicates whether the final disposition is to Archives or destruction. The development of such schedules would be the next step after the implementation of the File Classification Plan. Unfortunately no funds are available to proceed with this step.

Converting the existing system to this uniform system is going to require some energy on your part. If we begin with the notion that records are filed so that they can be retrieved when needed, then the effort is justified. The Classification Plan enables every new staff person who comes into your office to understand and follow the system. Further advantages of a system such as this are identified on page 2.

Each conference archivist and each conference secretary are receiving a copy of this letter. It is obviously directed primarily to conference secretaries. It is important, however, that the Conference Office and the Conference Archives work closely together, hence the double mailing.

Lise Giroux has now completed her time with us and so you may wonder what you do with questions or problems. In an ideal world there would be a Records Management person on staff in the General Council offices. In the less than ideal world that is brought about by our budgets, we will continue the Records Management Steering Committee and we have set up a Records Officers Group at 85 St. Clair.

The group consists of representatives from each Unit and like the Steering Committee will, for the time being, be chaired by myself. I am not pretending to be an authority on records management but will be a pipeline to two committees who will have some knowledge and more importantly to Jean Dryden, who is the Church Archivist, and who will work with both committees. I hope you will feel comfortable discussing your own program and how it can be adapted to this church-wide program with us.

Yours sincerely,

W.R. Davis General Secretary
Division of Finance
85 St. Clair Ave. East, Toronto, Ontario M4T 1M8
Telephone (416) 925-5931

B. METHODOLOGY

A team of library students from the University of Western Ontario surveyed the records in the London Conference office and compiled an inventory of all their holdings. This inventory was handed over to the Records Management Assistant for analysis. Visits were scheduled to the London and Hamilton Conference offices to review the records first hand.

Great effort was taken to evaluate the common functions of Conference offices without including provincial or regional differences. These differences may be included in the file classification plan by the Conferences themselves as they work through the document and personalize it.

The subjects relating to the program areas within the Division of Mission in Canada (DMC) and the Division of World Outreach (DWO) were not included in the present file classification plan because of the varying terms of reference and structures that have been developed independently by each Conference. Conference offices may wish to incorporate these areas into the plan by following the same standards and logic as set forth.

Conferences are urged to adapt this file classification plan according to individual volume of records and particular need. THIS IS NOT A STATIC DOCUMENT.

II ADVANTAGES OF ORGANIZED RECORDS

Records are the lifeblood of an organization. If an effective administration is to be maintained, then filing systems must be organized and improved.

An organized filing system will:

- o decrease the time required to retrieve a file or document
- o eliminate duplication of files
- o make it possible to access another person's files during periods of unscheduled absences
- o reduce equipment needs.

Two basic premises regarding records should be recognized.

- o If you have responsibility for a function, you have responsibility to adequately document it. It is important to record decisions and actions taken and to keep information that may be needed later.
- o Records should be adequately protected and taken care of. This means setting up good files, filing regularly and filing carefully.

A few points to remember are:

- o Break the extra copy habit. Duplicate records cost money to make and to keep.
- o Always put records in the right place. Do not simply leave them in your desk drawer or on a bookshelf.
- o If you keep records in a cabinet in your own work area, make sure they are filed according to the office file classification plan so you and others can use them efficiently.
- o Keep your personal material separate from the office records.

- o Should you have records in your work area when you change jobs, be sure to leave them for your replacement. Remember, the records created while performing your job functions belong to the organization.

When one person plays a role in better records management, everyone benefits.

III BASIC PRINCIPLE OF SUBJECT CLASSIFICATION

The basic principle of subject classification is that the SUBJECT of the record whether it be correspondence or documents governs the selection of the correct file code.

When all the material on a given subject is grouped together:

- o reference is faster
- o decisions can be made with all the information available
- o inquiries can be routinely answered

IV STRUCTURE AND CODING SYSTEM

The structure of the file classification plan is pyramidal, apexing with the general and spreading to the specific, beginning with group headings, then primaries, secondaries, and lastly tertiaries.

A. GROUP HEADINGS

All records generated are initially grouped under GROUP HEADINGS. Example: FIN FINANCE or ADM ADMINISTRATION

B. PRIMARIES

Each of these headings is then broken down into more specific sub-headings called PRIMARIES.

FIN-01	FINANCE GENERAL
FIN-10	ACCOUNTING
FIN-15	AUDIT

C. SECONDARIES

Each of the primaries are further sub-divided into particular subjects or SECONDARIES.

FIN-01-0	FINANCE GENERAL Policy & Procedures
FIN-01-1	FINANCE GENERAL General
FIN-10-1	ACCOUNTING General
FIN-10-2	ACCOUNTING Accounts (alpha by account code)
FIN-15-0	AUDIT Policy & Procedures
FIN-15-1	AUDIT General
FIN-15-2	AUDIT

Reports

FIN-15-3      AUDIT
                  Audited Financial Statements

IMPORTANT: -0 IN THE SECONDARY POSITION IS ALWAYS RESERVED FOR "POLICY & PROCEDURES".

-1 IN THE SECONDARY POSITION IS ALWAYS RESERVED FOR "GENERAL".

For secondary specific files, add -2, -3, -4, -5 etcetera, progressively as required.

D. TERTIARIES

Secondary subjects may be sub-divided and extended to the TERTIARY level but only as required and preferably to include only four or five additional subjects.

FIN-20-3-1      AUDIT
                  Audited Financial Statements
                  Conference

FIN-20-3-2      AUDIT
                  Audited Financial Statements presbytery

FIN	-	20	-	3	-	1
GROUP		PRIMARY		SECONDARY		TERTIARY
HEADING		(Audit)		(Audited Financial		(Conference)
(Finance)				Statements)

Under code FIN-20-3-1, is the Conference office's audited financial statements and under code FIN-20-3-2, is the presbytery's audited financial statements.

E. CODING

When coding, determine the subject first. Refer to the file classification plan for the proper file code. Then, using pencil, write the classification code in the upper right-hand corner of the document.

Some helpful hints:

- o Consider the function of the record. Look for key words and phrases. Since the subject line of correspondence may be misleading, do not choose the file code on this basis alone.
- o Refer to previous records on file to be sure.
- o Ask the author or someone familiar with the record for more information if an accurate subject is difficult to determine.

F. INDEXING

It is useful to maintain an alphabetical index to the file classification system of subjects. This can be maintained easily on a word processor or on data base management software. See Section XIII Alphabetical Subject Index, pages 43 – 47.

V OPENING FILES

A subject file (SECONDARY/TERTIARY) should not be opened until there is a minimum of five related papers on a particular subject.

Until this occurs all individual papers must remain in the general file under the relevant heading (PRIMARY).

Files for which there may be a need in the future should never be created. The need for opening a file will be governed by the existence of documents.

When placing records in files, put the latest record on top. Place the top of the sheet toward the left of the file drawer, so folder contents can be read like a book. Keep records completely within folders to avoid damage and to keep file folder labels visible.

VI ADDING SUBJECTS (PRIMARIES)

The file plan has been designed to add subject headings (PRIMARIES) easily. Gaps have been left between the primary numbers to allow for new subjects. For example, if you need to add a topic between ADM-10 and ADM-15, you could use ADM-11, ADM12, ADM-13, or ADM-14.

Use discretion when deciding to insert a new primary number and subject. A new primary number and subject should not be allotted unless volume demands it. Consider using an existing subject classification. When new subject classifications are necessary, place them logically at the proper level. The file classification plan and index should be updated at the same time.

Growth within an existing classification code can be accommodated by raising the level of that classification. A tertiary level classification may be raised to a secondary; a secondary may be raised to a primary.

Example:     COM-15-3-2 AUDIO-VISUAL
              Audio Visual Education Library (AVEL) catalogues would change to:

              COM-16-2 AUDIO VISUAL EDUCATION LIBRARY (AVEL) Catalogues

VII CASE FILES

The file classification plan organizes records by their general function, purpose or type. It is also possible to establish files for specific persons, organizations, actions or projects. These are called CASE FILES.

Case files are not identified by name in the classification plan because they change so frequently and they are of a limited duration. However, these files should be created whenever papers pertaining to a specific case must be filed or retrieved as a unit.

Case files are filed in alphabetic or numeric order behind the appropriate classification.

Example:     MIN-65-2 MINISTRY PERSONNEL FILES
              Personnel (alpha by name)

Numerous personnel files fall under this code. Rather than listing and assigning a number for each person, the files are filed alphabetically by the person's name. File folder labels would look something like this.

MIN-65-2 MINISTRY PERSONNEL FILES
Abraham, Gail

MIN-65-2 MINISTRY PERSONNEL FILES
Adams, Alvin

VIII GUIDES AND LABELS

The overall appearance of a file system plays a large part in the rapid retrieval of material. Guides and labels should be positioned consistently. Great care should be taken to use the same format when generating new labels and guides.

A. GROUP HEADING GUIDES

A guide should be made for each group heading in upper case letters and should bear the letter code and the full name for the group. If possible, use larger or bolder type for this set of guides.

Example: ADM ADMINISTRATION

B. PRIMARY GUIDES

A guide should be made for each PRIMARY heading in upper case letters and should bear the code and full name.

Example: ADM-10-0 ADMINISTRATION GENERAL

C. FILE FOLDER LABELS

Each SECONDARY (file folder level) should bear a label with the code and primary title in upper case letters the secondary title in upper and lower case and the date of the records in the file.

Example: ADM-10-0 ADMINISTRATION GENERAL
Policy & Procedure 1989

For TERTIARIES, add the name of the tertiary in lower case on the third line of the label. When purchasing labels, they need to be big enough to accommodate a tertiary; address labels are suitable.

Example: FIN-20-3-1 AUDIT
Audited Financial Statements
conference 1988

D. POSITIONING OF GUIDES AND LABELS

All guides and labels should be consistently positioned (see fig. 1). This example suggests placing the group heading guides and primary guides at the extreme left and the secondary and tertiary labels at the right.

Different ways of positioning guides and folder labels may be chosen but BE CONSISTENT.

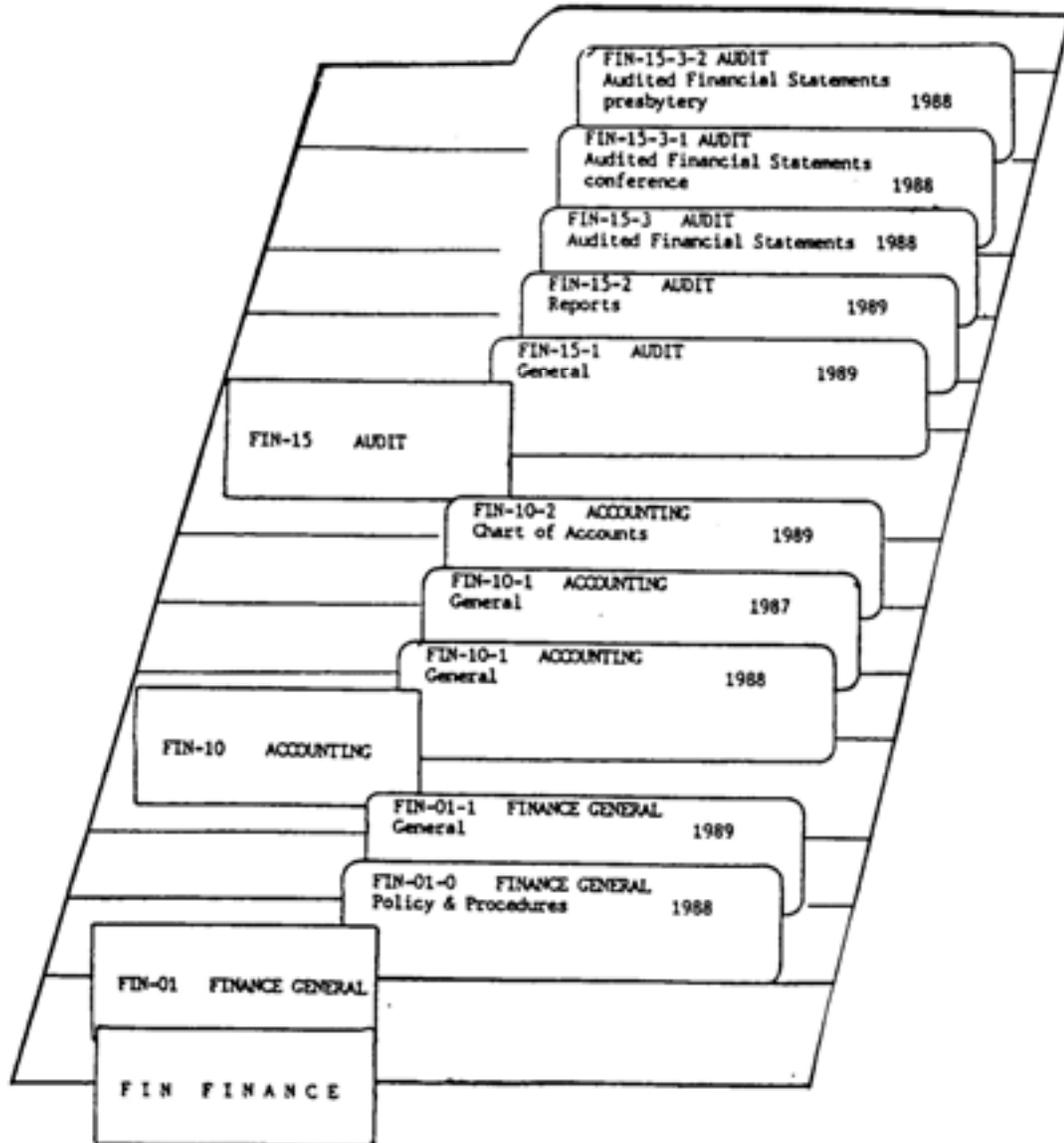

Fig. 1 Positioning of guides and labels

E. SEQUENCE

File folders should be sequenced in the filing cabinet according to the file classification plan. If files are kept in private work areas, file folders should be sequenced in order within the work area.

IX     CHARGE OUT

When a file folder is withdrawn from the filing system for reference, an "out card" (see fig. 2) is completed, indicating the date of request, the file code and borrower's name. The card is placed where the file was removed and remains there until the file is returned.

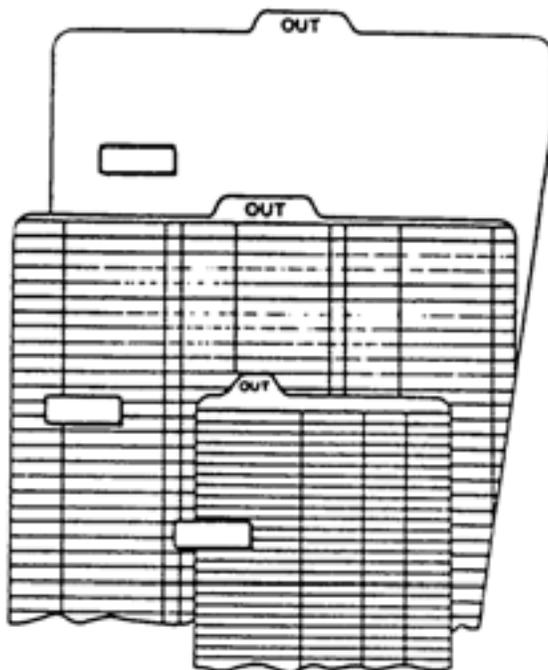

Fig. 2   Charge out cards

X     FILES CUTOFF

Files cutoff is the procedure for discontinuing filing in given file folders and establishing new ones. It is one of the most important components of an effective files management program. Unless files cutoff procedures are followed, it is virtually impossible to retire inactive files.

A.     SUBJECT FILE CUTOFF

Cut off old files and establish new folders once a year (every two years at the most) preferably at the beginning of the calendar year (corresponds to fiscal year). Establish new folders only for subjects that accumulated five or more papers in the previous year. Otherwise, use the next higher level classification in the new year.

B.     CASE OR PROJECT FILE CUTOFF

These files are often not cut off at the end of the calendar/fiscal year. They are more likely to close, for example, at the departure of an employee or at the completion of a project. When closed, the case file labels should be marked with the dates of closing.

Case files that are voluminous or that continue over a long period of time should be cut off periodically. Make a new set of file folders and retire the older folders that are referred to infrequently. This can occur annually or whenever the folders become too full of inactive materials.

XI FILING EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES

If you are contemplating new filing equipment, you should look into open shelf filing cabinets. Open shelves combined with end tab colour coded folders are much more efficient and effective than the traditional filing equipment and supplies. Although not a prerequisite to adopting this file classification plan, it could greatly enhance its effectiveness.
