

The United Church of Canada Governance Structure

The United Church undertook a major structural reorganization that became effective on January 1, 2019.

The United Church has three types of council—communities of faith, regional councils, and the denominational council (called the General Council). Each has its own sphere of authority and its own structure of committees and other bodies that oversee and carry out its responsibilities.